Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-2, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Koizumi (JP06-105257) in view of Ishikawa et al. (JP402076382A, hereinafter Ishikawa), Shima (JP402312370A), Yasumoto et al. (JP360025392A, hereinafter Yasumoto) and Shibata (JP359201600A).

Regarding claim 1, Koizumi disclose a television system comprising a television and at least one pair of frequency-splitting column sound boxes (10L, 10R, Drawing 1) with each having speakers, outputs of the sound television system being coupled respectively to the pair of sound boxes that are outside the television (Drawing 1, paragraphs: 0012-0018).

Koizumi differs from claim 1 in that he does not explicitly teach the following: a front amplifier and a power amplifier arranged in control circuit of the television circuit for sound signal processing, and three-stage frequency arrangement and further digital color television.

However, Shima discloses television receiver which teaches the following: a front amplifier and a power amplifier arranged in control circuit of the television circuit for sound signal processing (fig. 1, see abstract); and Ishikawa discloses speaker system with built-in type television set which teaches the following: three-stage frequency arrangement (fig. 5, see abstract); and Yasumoto and Shibata, together, teach digital color television (see abstracts).

Thus, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time invention was made to modify Koizumi's system to provide for the following: a front amplifier and a power amplifier arranged in control circuit of the television circuit for sound signal processing as this arrangement would provide means to drive the speakers with a signal of optimum voltage and frequency as taught by Sima, thus providing good sound level for listeners and three-stage frequency arrangement as this arrangement would provide means for obtaining better sound quality for the listener as taught by Ishikawa and further digital color television as this arrangement would further provide superior listening and viewing experience for the user as is well known in the art.

Regarding claim 2, Koizumi teaches plurality of speakers in sound boxes (Drawing 1, see abstract); but he does not teach the following: sound boxes are built into the color television.

However, Ishikawa teaches the following: sound boxes are built into the television (fig. 5, see abstract); and Shibata teaches color television receiver (fig. 2, see abstract).

Thus, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time invention was made to modify Koizumi's system to provide for the following: sound boxes are built into the color television as this arrangement would provide another method of installing speakers, thus providing a compact arrangement for television system.

Art Unit: 2643

3. Claims 3-4, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Koizumi in view of Ishikawa, Shima, Yasumoto and Shibata as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of Numagami (JP404054076A).

Regarding claims 3-4, the combination does not teach the following: speakers for those for the surrounding stereo.

However, Numagami discloses television receiver which teaches the following: speakers for those for the surrounding stereo (fig. 1, see abstract).

Thus, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time invention was made to modify the combination to provide for the following: speakers for those for the surrounding stereo as this arrangement would facilitate for listening to stereo surround sound as taught by Numagami.
